Outstanding value shown:

Kenzie-Inquirer – Making and sustaining a fire during a forest school lesson.

TCS this past week:

Watson – Have enjoyed designing book tokens for a competition. They also made book characters with wooden spoons.

Tajiri – Have been working hard in maths, continuing to look at fractions.

Thunberg – Enjoyed listening to author Elaine Slade reading her book 'Maybe I Can.' They also played Hangman based on books that have been made into films.

Williams – Joined a live-stream workshop with Michael Rosen; they heard him read some of his poems and were able to share their own ideas on the message board.

Grandin – Have enjoyed 'Tales from Around the World' for WBD with stories from Pakistan, Iran and Israel.

Davis – Have been studying the text Jekyll and Hyde, they have compared different covers and discussed how the author has represented the characters.

Turing – Have been playing ball games outdoors in PE. As part of WBD, they listened to a talk from an author and discussed her drafting process.

Eilish – Have started learning about 'Romeo and Juliet' in English. They also listened to Elaine Slade talking about the editing and development process in writing.

Lawson – Have been annotating two poems: Kamikaze by Beatrice Garland and Checking Out Me History by John Agard.

Beadle – Have started a new topic in Science on climate change. They have been exploring the effects of rising carbon levels and increasing global temperatures.

Banneker – Boiled water over a fire to make hot chocolate in Forest School.

Sixth Form – Have made progress in organising their work experience placements.
